This article represents a network engineering primer for the next-generation Internet. The authors consider the impact of optical networks in conjunction with Quality of Service (QoS) parameters currently proposed and in use within the public Internet. A primary ingredient in the successful provisioning of QoS sessions requires traffic engineering techniques and methodologies by automated agents or network engineers. Given the scalability of next-generation routers, as well as the reduced comple ...

Soft Modems use the main processor to execute modem functions traditionally performed by hardware on the modem card. To function correctly, soft modems require that ongoing signal processing computations be performed on the host CPU in a timely manner. Thus, signal processing is a commonly occurring background real-time application---one running on systems that were not designed to support predictable real-time execution. This paper presents a detailed study of the performance characteristics ...
